

LESSONS ONLINE

- Effective immediately, all lessons in my private studio will be held via online video conference.
- This is temporary, and in person lessons will resume as soon as it is responsible to do so.
- Here is why I'm encouraging all my fellow private lesson teachers to do the same.

IT IS THE RIGHT THING TO DO

Flatten the curve

Now is our chance to give our health care system time to keep up with COVID-19 in addition to the usual health demands.

SHARING AN INSTRUMENT

Our lessons involve sharing a harp

Sharing an instrument with other students as well as your teacher is a great way to also share germs.

CLOSE PERSONAL CONTACT

Is it worth the risk?

Private lessons involve lots of close person to person contact, which is the opposite of social distancing recommended by the WHO and CDC.

WHAT IF I'VE NEVER TAUGHT ONLINE ?

Once upon a time you didn't know how to play your instrument either.

You can do this! You mastered an instrument, you inspire students every week, you and your students can figure out how to have lessons via online video conferencing.
